Slough's toast was—"Friendship, the great bond of Union between Russia and the United States—may it never be broken." This was responded to by Captain Wyman, who said:—"America, the cradle of liberty, the home of the oppressed and downtrodden of every nation under the sun, had been taught what liberty truly was by the great act which liberated millions of Russians from slavery and seridon. America has already profited by the noble lesson, and to-day she is what she never was before, a free country." Capt.
